VIRTUAL TRUCE IS DECLARED IN THE FARM STRIKE

Governors of Four States Now En Route to Washington Conference

FOR RELIEF DEMANDS

Immediate 'Pegging' of Prices
One of Principal
Demands

By Thomas A. Pledge
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1.—(INS)— With Governors of four states en route to Washington today to place their farm relief program demands before President Roosevelt for action, National Farmers Holiday Association leaders declared a virtual "truce" in the farm strike.

The strike in Wisconsin, focal point of the holiday movement, was called off pending action by the Federal Government.

Immediate "pegging" of prices for all major agricultural products and currency inflation were the principal demands made in the relief program to be submitted to the President.

Practically the entire program of the Farmers Holiday Association was the approval of governors at the nine-state agricultural conference which closed here last night. Four governor members of the conference were dispatched to Washington to push for its adoption there. They are to confer with the President Thursday.

Governors Clyde Herring, of Iowa;
A. G. Schmedeman, of Wisconsin; Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota; and William Langer, of North Dakota, were delegated to seek President Roosevelt's acceptance of the farm holiday program as slightly modified by the conference.

The relief program as it is to be put up to the President provides, in its major points:

1. That agriculture be put under an NRA code which would authorize fixing of minimum prices equal to cost of production plus a reasonable profit.
Administrators of the code also would determine the amount of the several basic agricultural products to be sold on the domestic market. The administrators would be farmers, the Government and consumers.

2. That, pending adoption of the code the Government arbitrarily fix minimum prices at which farm commodities could be sold on the domestic market, the prices to allow for a reasonable profit above cost of production. Authority to do this, the conference declared, already is in the hands of the President under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

3. That currency be immediately inflated and that the Fourth Liberty loan be paid in new currency rather than being retired by another interest-bearing bond issue.

4. That Government refinancing of farm loans be liberalized by higher appraisals and that interest on Government refinancing loans be reduced.

5. That both the President and the governors of the several states do everything in their power to defer further foreclosure of mortgages and evictions until farmers have had a reasonable opportunity to avail themselves of the credit facilities already offered by the government.

6. That the President declare an embargo on foreign grains, oils, fats, and other agricultural products competing with American products until reciprocal trade agreements are completed with foreign countries.

Ernest M. Daniel Dies In Philadelphia Hospital

Ernest M. Daniel, husband of Marian Daniel, nee Hogarth, died last evening in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia.

Mr. Daniel was found injured in the carding department of the mill of William H. Grundy & Company, Inc., Friday evening, between nine and 9.30 o'clock.

Mr. Daniel was employed with another employee in the same department, the men working on opposite sides of the same machine. The man working on the other side of the machine heard an unusual noise and walking around to the side where Daniel was employed, found Daniel with a severe bruise of the head, unconscious on the floor.

The injured man was rushed to the Harriman Hospital and the next day taken to the University Hospital in Philadelphia.

The deceased was born in Ogdens-burg, N. Y., July 9, 1911, the son of Fred and Pauline Daniel. The family moved to Bristol in 1926 where they have resided since.

In addition to the wife of the deceased and one son, 19 months old, his mother, father, three brothers and two sisters survive.

He was a member of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral from the late residence of the deceased, 925 Garden street, Friday morning, at nine o'clock. There will be high mass in St.
Mark's church at 10 o'clock and burial will be in the Bristol Cemetery.

SEEK FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—A week's experimenting with the new gold policy having failed to bring about higher commodity prices, the administration today apparently was seeking the cooperation of Great Britain and France for a progressive, orderly cheapening of the American dollar without risking international currency warfare. It was reported in treasury circles—and not denied—that Washington has approached both the Bank of England and the Bank of France in the matter.

DYING MAN GIVES CLUES

Camden, N. J., Nov. 1.—Gangdom early today was partially successful in attempting to "rub out" two men sought as suspects in the slaying of a policeman in a payroll hold-up last July in Philadelphia. One of the men, Edward DeLorenzo, 30, also known as DeAngelo Wallace, was found shot to death in the underbrush along the road near Bellmawr, N. J. His companion, John Zukovsky, also known as John Paul, was in a dying condition in the Cooper Hospital. It was not until police told Zukovsky he was about to die that he gave them clues which led to the finding of DeLoren-zo's body several hours later. Zukov-sky and DeLorenzo were identified from rogues' gallery pictures as men sought for the $6720 hold-up at the Quaker City Morocco Company last July 24th, when Policeman Charles Stockburger was ruthlessly slain by the gunmen.

State Aid Sought By The Commissioners For Pike

The County Commissioners have taken action with regard to the rebuilding of the Bethlehem pike, a dangerous highway in the upper end of the county.

In a letter written by John S. Roberts, Jr., president of the board of County Commissioners, to Samuel S.
Lewis, Secretary of Highways, Mr.
Roberts said:

"If there is now or should be in the near future any money available for the construction of state highways in Bucks county, we would suggest that plans be made for the rebuilding of the Bethlehem pike, route No. 153, from Sellersville to Quakertown.

"We will be willing to assume our responsibility in connection with the construction thereof in any feasible route.

"There is a dangerous dead end at Quakertown, where only last week another person was killed, and several injured.

"This condition, according to the County Commissioners, should be remedied by continuing the road from Quakertown to Sellersville, to join the road which you are about to construct."

Kindergarten and 4th Grade Pupils Make Merry At Parties

GIRLS CONDUCT DANCE

Miss Adelia Wright held a Hallowe'en party yesterday for the members of her kindergarten. The party was held in the class room which was decorated in orange and black.

The children were in costume and there were many representations.
Those present: Henry Black, Harold Helen Hilgendorf, Dolores Martin, Harold Hunter and Clarence Staley.
Edward Finegan, Mary Brennan, Dolores Martin, Dorothy Hering.

The children had a good time playing games, and prizes were won by Helen Hilgendorf, Dolores Martin,
Harold Hunter and Clarence Staley.
Refreshments were served, and each child received a pumpkin face lolly-pop as a favor.

A group of young women who recently formed a club held a Hallowe'en dance last evening in social hall of No.
3 fire house, Swain street.

The committee, namely: Blanche Ellis, Marie Hoffman, Gertrude Snyder, Lillian Dries and Katharine McGinley, arranged the decorations of orange and black crepe paper, autumn leaves, pumpkins, etc.

Most all were in costume, and dancing was enjoyed to radio music. Refreshments were served.

The fourth grade of Harriman school, taught by Miss Laura Ellis, held a Hallowe'en party in the school room yesterday afternoon. Prizes were given for costumes to John Ruszin, comic, dressed as a negro tramp; Evelyn DenBleyker, fancy, as Red Riding Hood; William Croner, most original, dressed as a girl.

The 1933 Borough Budget

HOW did the Borough government of Bristol, arranging for the fiscal year of 1933, set about solving those problems which have caused so many other municipalities to default on their bonds, and in some instances even on their payrolls, leaving those local governments not only with impaired credit, but actually insolvent?

How did our Borough government bridge the difficulty of making both ends meet when it was known that as a result of the very unusual conditions prevailing, there would be unavoidable delinquencies, in spite of a tax rate 5c less per $100 than for either of the three preceding years—a tax rate approximately only half of that permitted by law?

The simple facts of punctual payments on bonded indebtedness already have been set forth. But, merely of itself, that commendable policy and practice could not solve more than a fractional part of the problem.

It was a situation calling for extraordinary measures—the best judgment of the Burgess and Council; the ablest work of the Tax Collector; the fullest co-operation by every department head and Borough employee—all expressed in a Borough budget $18,346 less for 1933 than for 1932, and only made possible and practicable by the splendid way the salaried employees met the necessity for a 20% cut.

Here is the story as told in the figures of the operating budgets of 1932 and 1933:

	1932	1933
Street Committee	$20,000	$10,000
Ash Collection	3,636	2,800
Police Department	14,000	11,500
Fire Department	7,500	6,000
Health, Sanitation and Poor Committee	13,500	12,500
Street Lighting	10,500	10,500
Department of Public Works	2,000	1,500
Board of Health	1,200	900
Finance and Public Property Committee	11,500	10,000
Janitor services	1,300	1,040
Salaries	550	500
	$85,686	$67,340

Under this reduced budget no function of the Borough government has been suspended, and the least curtailment has been made in those services and activities which are most essential. It is to be noted, for example, that no reduction whatever was made in the item for street lighting, and only $1,000 was cut from the appropriation for Health, Sanitation and Poor.

This program of wise and balanced retrenchment could not have been conceived and carried into effect with the success that has attended it, if our Borough government had been divided by party purposes or split by factional strife. It required, and will continue to require, the harmony of experience, complete understanding and common purpose, to insure the maximum of efficient administration and economical operation for the best interests of the entire community.

HOME PRODUCTS SHOW IS WELL PATRONIZED

Hundreds Enjoy Exhibits At Newtown's 4th Annual Affair

VARIETY IS NOTICEABLE

NEWTOWN, Nov. 1.—The home products show, the fourth of its kind sponsored here by the Newtown Chamber of Commerce, is eliciting great interest on the part of not only the borough residents, but those of the township and many portions of Bucks County.

Over 300 were present on the opening night this week, and nightly the groups continue. The show will continue for the balance of this week. It is believed the attendance this year will exceed that of previous shows of its kind.

Not only are farm products being exhibited, but the women of the community are also exhibiting a large number of articles. The judging of the products was completed last evening.

Judges of the farm products were County Farm Agent William F. Green-awalt, Doylestown, and R. E. Underwood, Mount Holly, Burlington county farm agent. The judges of the women's exhibit include Miss Anne Dash-lell, home economics instructor at George School; Miss Edith Tilley, of this place, and Miss Rhendana A.
Armstrong, Bucks county home economics extension director.

This is the first year that the women of the community have been exhibiting at the show. This feature is being sponsored by the Newtown New Century Club. Lewis Fitzgerald is serving as general chairman and R. Roland Porter is in charge of the farm exhibits.

A feature of the show on Friday will be an exhibit of baked articles by the members of the Newtown New Century Club. After the articles have been judged they will be sold for the benefit of the welfare fund in the borough.

County Agent William F. Green-awalt, who with R. E. Underwood, Mount Holly, N. J., Burlington county farm agent, served as one of the judges of the farm products, said this morning that the exhibits at the show this year were better than usual in quality. There were more than 100 exhibits of farm products in addition to those made by the women of the community.

First prize winners were awarded blue ribbons; second prize, red, and third prize, yellow. Sweepstake winners were awarded...

Lawyers Endorse Eastburn's Re-election As Dis't. Att'y.

Members of the Bucks County Bar have endorsed the re-election of Arthur M. Eastburn as district attorney of Bucks County. The endorsement reads:

Arthur M. Eastburn, Esq., is a candidate for re-election to the office of District Attorney of Bucks County.
His efficient record in that office for the past eight years is well known to all.

It is the record of an able and conscientious public servant. His legal talents and forceful personality have fully protected the interests of the Commonwealth at all times. He has held his own with the leaders of the criminal bar of this and adjoining counties.

He has used common sense in the administration of his office, and has a true sense of the relative importance of the various matters coming before him. He has saved the time of the Courts and money for the taxpayers. This is particularly notable in the expedition with which he has conducted cases which might have been made sensational spectacles. Trials which might easily have taken weeks to conclude, have, by his handling, been disposed of in a few days and the result has been a substantial saving for the taxpayers of the county.

He has discouraged litigation which is not in the public interest. Although his record of convictions is high, he has never sought convictions at the expense of justice, nor has he allowed his office to be used for mere private ends.

He has always shown the utmost respect for the Court, and extended every courtesy to his fellow attorneys.
With his years of experience he has become an unusually competent District Attorney.

The undersigned, members of the Bucks County Bar, therefore, take pleasure in recommending to the voters of Bucks County the re-election of District Attorney Eastburn on November 7.

Bristol Woman Charges Husband With Desertion

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(INS)— Judge Vivian Frank Gable in Domestic Relations Court yesterday accepted the offer of William Sullivan to pay $15 a week to his wife, Amelia, of Bristol, who had him arrested on a charge of desertion.

Mrs. Sullivan charged that he deserted her and her three children 10 years ago and that she had not seen him until he appeared in court. Sullivan said he was under a suspended sentence for bigamy in Baltimore.

INVITE RETAILERS TO NRA MEETING HERE

Will Explain New Code at A Meeting in Elks' Home
Tonight

URGE ALL TO ATTEND

Richard W. French, chairman of the N. R. A. committee in Bristol, will address the merchants at an important meeting to be held tonight in the Elks' Home at 8 o'clock, and he urges every retail merchant, automobile garage man and gasoline station operator to be present.

"We can do much toward increasing local business, if we can get full-hearted co-operation from everyone," said Mr. French, while discussing this meeting. "So make your appeal to the merchants to attend in large numbers, as strong as you can."

"General Johnson, chairman of the national recovery program, has sent me a lot of new data on the retailers' code, that should prove of interest to the shopkeepers, and I will pass it along to them at this meeting."

"You know the Christmas season will soon be here and the local merchants should unite in a plan to have the people of this vicinity buy now and at home," concluded Mr. French.

THE BOILER IS SOLD

N. L. Lukens, Otter street, had a hot-water boiler that he did not need, and taking the logical means to dispose of it advertised in the Classified columns of the Courier a few days ago. And he was successful.

"Three people wanted to buy the boiler," said Mr. Lukens. "I had no trouble selling it."

Candidate for Council

FRANK PFEIFER

Councilman from Sixth Ward

Born in Philadelphia, February 2nd, 1885, Mr. Pfeifer was brought to Bristol by his parents when he was three years of age and has been a resident here ever since.

After attending the public schools of Bristol he worked in several factories here, following which he entered the piano and musical instrument business with the late Charles Grim.
Upon the latter's death, some twenty years ago, Mr. Pfeifer took over the business, which he has continued since.

Mr. Pfeifer is a member of Bristol Lodge No. 970, B. P. O. E.; Bristol Lodge No. 25, F. and A. M.; the Shrine, the Philadelphia Consistory, Bristol Rotary, and other fraternal and business organizations. He is married and has one son, and always has been an active factor in Boys' Week.

He was elected to Borough Council from the Sixth Ward in 1929, succeeding Frank Satterthwaite, and is a member of the Street and Highway, the Municipal Water Supply and Public Works Committees.

He was nominated for another term in the Primary and is a candidate in the election, Tuesday, November 7th.

TWO GUNNERS HURT IN BUCKS COUNTY TODAY

Herbert Fisher, Bristol R. D., Has Leg and Toe
Injuries

PHILADELPHIAN HURT

Two gunning accidents were reported early this morning, with the opening of the gunning season.

Herbert Fisher, Bristol R. D., suffered a lacerated wound of the left leg and injuries to three toes of his left foot when his shot-gun discharged as he slipped while gunning.

The gunner was taken to Harriman Hospital, where the leg wound, two inches long, had three stitches taken in it. The toes were peppered with shot, and anti-toxin was administered.
Mr. Fisher was able to return to his home.

On a farm near Doylestown early this morning, Myers Richardson, 48, of 3450 Ludlow street, West Philadelphia, suffered gun-shot wounds in the chest, face, left arm and left ear, when his gun accidentally discharged.

Taken to the Doylestown Emergency Hospital, the man was discharged after treatment.

By last night 7299 gunners' licenses had been issued in Bucks County. It is estimated that 19,000 sportsmen took to the fields and woods this morning.

Consolidated Firemen Enjoy Fine Entertainment

Members of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department met last night and nominated officers for the ensuing year. These officers will be up for election at the January meeting. Following the transaction of routine business there was a program of entertainment followed by the serving of light refreshments.

The officers nominated were: President, Clifford L. Anderson; vice president, John Y. Turner; secretary, Serrill D. Detlefson; treasurer, Jacob L.
Heilman; trustees: John S. Roberts, Jr., Anthony Russo and Albert G.
Lochner.

A very interesting and informative report was read by Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee. Superintendent McGee attended the convention of the State Firemen's Association and brought back with him a number of valuable suggestions concerning fire prevention work. These suggestions were given to the firemen last evening.

The entertainment was furnished by professional talent from Philadelphia and featured Joe McGrath at the piano. McGrath is a well known radio artist and is heard over WCAU.

Johnie Pedro gave selections on the piano-acordion. Joan Gardner and Joan Morton favored with singing and dancing numbers, while Francis Peters played the part of a cabaret girl.

The meeting was largely attended, the assembly room being filled to capacity.

PETROLEUM CODE IS NOW IN EFFECT UNDER NRA RULES

Herman Alexander of Bristol Named On Group
Committee

FAIR PLAY ASSURED

Bucks - Montgomery Group Holds Meeting In Philadelphia

The petroleum code of fair competition under the NRA is now in effect and full operating force. A meeting was held in Philadelphia and the Bucks-Montgomery committee was formed. Harry J. Baldwin, Norristown, an executive of the Atlantic Refining Company, is chairman of the group.

At the Philadelphia meeting it was pointed out the code concerns not only members of oil companies, but independent dealers, garage men and others handling the products. All of these groups have representation on the committee.

The code is mandatory and the committee will co-operate with dealers in Montgomery and Bucks counties in an educational program for conformity.

"Fair play is the theme of the code and that's what we seek to have in our counties," Chairman Baldwin stated today. "Any questions concerning the code provisions will be answered and we hope that uniform conformance with the code is quickly put in practice."

Other members of the Montgomery-Bucks committee include:

J. M. Wilson, Socony-Vacuum Company, Lansdale; P. A. Devereaux, Sun Oil Company, Norristown; J. W. Butler, Richfield Oil Company, Philadelphia; Herman Alexander, Bristol; H.
A. Vortigan, Eveready Oil Company, Philadelphia; Paul Erdman, Jobber, Pottstown; I. C. Landis, garage man and auto dealer, Collegeville; Charles Schaeff, service station and garage, Norristown; T. C. Morris, Independent Dealers' Association, Fort Washington.

One more member from Doylestown and three from Bucks county generally will be named later.

Mothers' Ass'n. To Give Special Children's Show

The four-act comedy, "Heads Up," that will be presented Thursday and Friday for the benefit of the Mothers' Association of Bristol schools, at the high school, will have a special showing at 7.30 tonight for children, with a modest admission fee.

The scene of the play is laid in the Maxwell House, Seven Fountains, Va.
Colonel Maxwell, the proprietor, learns that his investments in spurious oil wells have proven worthless, and confides to his daughter that outside of the hotel, they are penniless.
Patricia, the daughter, a co-ed at Wexford Hall, is in love with Jack Barron, a young student, son of the "Nouveau Riche" Bill Barron, from Boston, and her father heartily disapproves.

Tracy, a New York confidence man, comes to town with Spike, Dan and Gink, gangsters, and informs the Colonel that a crooked hotel syndicate is backing the election of the notorious Mike Martin for mayor, and that the Maxwell house will be condemned and a new hotel built across the street.

The "I Wanna Tappa Keg" fraternity and "Pat" Maxwell hit upon the same scheme—one as an initiation stunt and the other as a means of protecting her father. They decide Jack Barron must run for mayor. Jack's father blows into town and learning of the situation contributes the money for the campaign.

Tracy has Jack and his father kidnapped and the election drawing near the boys find themselves without their candidate.

Just how the faculty of Wexford Hall, Buttons, the bell boy; the ladies of the Civic Lead; Ad, Harry, Bob, Tex, Tom, Jack's fraternity brothers; Sherlock, Philo and Dizzy, the three escaped lunatics; Virginia Vaughn, a sorority president; Miss Abacrombie, the dean of women, and the other members of the cast, aid in discovering the whereabouts of the kidnappers and their victims, will be disclosed to the lucky audiences of Thursday and Friday.

Reserved seat tickets are exchange-able or on sale at Levinson's United Cigar store, Mill street, now.

A WAR-MINDED WORLD

A flying boat capable of raining one and one-half pound shells upon an enemy at the rate of 100 a minute has been perfected by the British Royal Air force, according to news from London.

The craft's speed is given as 132 miles an hour, and it is said to have a cruising radius of 1,500 miles. While revealing these facts, the government is closely guarding a secret feature of construction by which the gun's recoil is absorbed by the machine.

The particular value of these vessels, it is held, would be in destroying submarines, although they could render important service in other phases of warfare.

The development of this weapon, announced in the midst of disarmament discussions and the signing of peace treaties, illustrates enlightening how far the world is from a warless mind. It means that other nations will attempt to duplicate and to surpass the new British weapon. Notwithstanding that the construction secrets are closely guarded, other nations may be expected at an early date to have flying boats of equal or greater destructiveness.

Thus does the search for wholesale death-dealing instruments continue while statesmen talk peace.

A PECULIAR SITUATION

If the federal government is feeding Argentine beef to the civilian conservation corps, as Professor Granlich of the Nebraska Agricultural college charges, it seems to represent an inconsistency that is in need of quick correction.

With an oversupply of cattle in this country and with the government using extraordinary measures in an effort to place the live stock industry on a profitable basis, there should be no need of using foreign beef to feed its workers.

The professor's charge that foreign beef has been bought by the government for this purpose received no immediate answer in Washington, although the department of agriculture admitted that 9,236,000 pounds of canned beef had been imported from the Argentine this year as against 7,744,000 pounds last year and 29,785,000 in 1929. Headquarters of the civilian conservation corps also remained silent on the charges.

Even the ancient romancers employed sex, but they left a little of it to the imagination.

It is easy to believe in Providence when you note how people drive and how few wrecks there are.

Booze is a stimulant, but you can't tell whether it will stimulate you or the undertaker's business.

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

Other people were going in when they got to the Bijou and everybody wanted to stop and talk to them but Pop just kept going on like an Indian. Mom had given him a dollar before they left the house and he walked right up to the window and laid it down like he was going to the opera house in New York. But George Kaufman was there and he smiled and said to Pop:

"Your money is no good here tonight, Mr. Randolph."

Mom saw that eye go down and she was dentally afraid Pop was going to bowl George Kaufman out right there because there was no telling what he would say or do when he was like this; but George said:

"Tommy's folks are guests of the house tonight—I'll take you down to your reserved seats myself." And here George had a dress suit on.

Pop smiled, just a bit, but he didn't even say thank you and Mom had to go so fast to keep up with him that she hardly got a look at the pictures of Tommy outside.

Inside they were going down the aisle following George Kaufman. The lights were still on and the place was almost filled up and when everybody saw them coming they started to clap. It was all Mom could do to keep from crying right out loud; but Pop just took her arm and squeezed it tight and he was so grand that Mom felt like a great lady herself and they went down the aisle as though nothing had happened. Mom had never been so proud of Pop. She thought Coolidge himself couldn't have done it better.

Then Mom got mad. There was Cousin Emmy standing up, waving her skinny arms for Mom to come where she was, letting everybody know that she was one of the family too; and Mom pretended not to see her making a show of herself and would have gone somewhere else; but that was right where George Kaufman took them to their reserved seats.

And there, on the other side of her was Pop and the other side of her was the Mayor; and just in front of her was Charlie Whitney, and with him was the Superintendent of schools, R. K. Washburn.

And the Mayor shook hands with her and Pop, and so did Charlie Whitney, looking right into her eyes, he did, like he had never done before; and Mom could see he had the same pretty blue eyes he did when he was a boy; and somehow Charlie looked so pleased you would have thought Tommy was his boy.

And everybody was cheering and Mom felt like it was in a dream, and she wished Tommy could be there, it was so wonderful, except that Cousin Emmy was still standing up, smiling to Mom, showing her teeth, and waving her skinny arms, still wearing the flowered chiffon. Even then Mom almost had to laugh at the way Pop took it, hardly a smile except way back in his eyes. He sure carried it off.

Then the lights went off and the picture came on the screen and Mom heard Pop groan and reach down for his feet. She knew, sure as anything, he was going to loosen his shoes; she prayed he wouldn't take them clear off because his feet would be sure to be awed—and wouldn't it be a nice howdy-do to end the evening with him not able to get his shoes back on?

Mom's greatest movie thrill—Once her boy looked right at her from the screen while he was supposed to be kissing the glamorous Valeska Mourat!

Then Mom forgot Pop's feet.

In the darkness, where nobody could see, she was crying.

Then she had to laugh again; for Pop was nudging her.

He was winking at her, the devil.

Just like when they were married, while he was putting the ring on her finger.

The program opened up with a "Mickey Mouse" and Mom smiled; because the mouse got the best of the cat; and Butcher Brown would be sure to say tomorrow that he wouldn't have done that to Albert. Then there was a newsreel and a lot of advertisements and Pop got fidgety waiting through it all and started to look up where the man was showing the pictures. Pop had a mad look on him and Mom had to nudge him to make him turn around and be patient—although she could hardly wait, herself; but Pop might even say something out loud which would have spoiled everything since George Kaufman had been so nice about having the Mayor and R. K. Washburn and Charlie Whitney in reserved seats, too. Just for a minute Mom thought it was too bad the old grandmother wasn't there, too, right down front where she could see what kind of people the Scrogins were now.

Then, without any notice another picture jumped right out on the screen and . . . there was her Tommy!

There was little sleep for Mom that night, just catnaps and dozes.

She would wake up from these every time Pop moved in his sleep; even Pop seemed to be disturbed and he could sleep through an earthquake if the house was falling down. Mom was more of a light sleeper and now her head was full of noise and chatter and pictures of this and that, on the screen and off, of things which happened during that wonderful evening.

Tommy was so grand and big and he certainly left the rest of the movie actors in the shade for looks. It was funny to sit and watch her own boy making love, particularly to that bold Valeska Mourat; and it was to Tommy's credit that you could see he was just acting because he had to, and he wasn't really falling in love with her. Once he had looked right at Mom while he was supposed to be kissing Valeska Mourat, just like he was telling her . . . don't pay any attention to this, Mom.

He certainly showed them in the football—although every time Mom thought of the football she shook her head, even in her sleep, and thanked God he was through with all that; and she was glad she had never seen him play the football because then she would have worried herself sick more than she had. It was a good picture, Mom thought, and Jack Devere was very comic but there wasn't enough of Tommy in it. But everybody seemed to like it, particularly Cousin Emmy, who made Mom mad every time she stuck her hands out in front of her to clap and looked around at everybody to see if they could see her and her silly grin. Even Pop noticed her and he wasn't one to pay attention to things like that.

"I'm talking TO WOMEN VOTERS"

"Next Tuesday we will go to the polls and vote for our favorite candidates. But there's another election taking place right now in all our homes—choosing the winter fuel. I'd like to put in a good word for an old friend of mine, Koppers Coke. I think women ought to have something to say about the kind of fuel they prefer. My husband, for example, had no idea of the thousands of times I've traveled up and down those cellar stairs to look after the fire. And goodness knows, I've gone into my house-keeping money over and over again to help pay for the fuel we were using. Burning Koppers Coke has taught us many things—and the first is that until we started using it, our fuel bills had always been higher than necessary. With Koppers, we save one dollar out of every ten. And it's a genuine comfort to know that even on the coldest days, our Koppers fire is burning easily and evenly without our having to bother with it. We only have one-third the ashes too. Koppers Coke receives my vote every time. Vote for it yourself just once and you'll never elect to use any other fuel!"

SPORT

BRISTOL MAN DEVOTEE
OF RAIL HUNTING SPORT

A brief account of a rail hunting trip in which Thomas Scott, cashier of Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, engaged with others, is published in the October issue of "Pennsylvania Game News". The interesting account, "Hunting Rails," is accompanied by photographs, two of which show the Bristol man during his pursuit of the sport.

The story follows:

Ever been rail hunting? Try it. It's different from anything you've ever hunted before. The Game Commission, always on the alert to give the sportsmen something new in the movie line, recently sent their News Editor and Official Photographer down along the Delaware to try for some pictures of the aforesaid shooting. We started for Bucks County on Sunday and landed at Doylestown, home of Game Protector Warren Pretz late that evening. Game Supervisor Wilbur Cramer, of Division "A," also was on hand and we planned the morrow's trip before we hit the bed. In the morning it was raining and by noon it was pouring. But despite the downpour Game Protector Middleton brought the Commission's motorboat up from Delaware County and we all went over to Bristol to await the tide. Mr. Pretz had previously made practically all arrangements, and with the help of Mr. Thomas Scott, Bristol, cashier of Farmers National Bank, and Deputies Joseph Groner and Daniel Potter we launched the craft at about 3 P. M. just when the tide was at its highest. You must wait for high tide if you want to hunt rails, else you could not approach the marshes except by foot, and this just isn't done any more. Those who hunt in this fashion are known by local residents as mud waders. They wade through marsh grass which very often is higher than their heads and if you don't think it's tough going try it some time.

Now the boat hunters don't have it quite so bad—but had enough. They stand in the front of a specially designed boat (I don't know the exact name for it) while the poler, using a fifteen foot pole, shoves you here, there and everywhere, through the grass in the hope of raising a bird. The rails are not very big, about quail size, I'd say, and when they flush they flutter only a short distance and then alight. If you hit one you have either to keep your eye on it all the while or definitely mark the spot, or you'll never find it.

There were about twenty or twenty-five persons in the little bit of marsh area we were covering, and the photographer and I, each in a boat manned by skillful polers, followed the other boats around until we secured pictures of the flush and kill. Both of us had movie cameras and both registered some good scenes, but the strain of holding the camera to eye and balancing yourself (amateur-like) in the frail boat was severe and our arms were nearly paralyzed.

Rail hunting appeals only to those few people who have access to their habitat and I was amazed to meet one man and his wife who had been hunting those very same marshes since 1900. Mr. Scott, who so kindly put his boats at our disposal, also is an old-timer.

All in all the experience was very interesting and it is the Commission's hope that the pictures taken will be just as interesting. They will form a part of one of the News Reels, and if you want to see it, just ask our lecturer the next time he happens to speak before your club.

Can there be anything more hideous than the attempt to assure a Drunken Christmas! We thought the depths of depravity had been reached when the brewery mouth-pieces began to work to celebrate the most triumphant episode since creation—the resurrection of our dear Lord—by their sordid slogan: "Beer by Easter."

But the Wet Crusaders are still spreading the same sort of Paganism. "Out of the Prohibition Clutches by Christmas" is the slogan announced by the Commander of the Wet Crusaders—Col. Ira Reeves. Whiskey bottles instead of stockings by the mantel-piece; Drunkenness instead of Good Will! It was Reeves who told a gathering of business men at Evans-ton that the aim of the "temperance" education of the Crusaders was to teach the young TO USE—not abuse—WHISKY. What better day on which to teach the young to use liquor than Christmas! If one starts in to debauch the entire Christian community, it seems to be entirely in line with the program to choose the celebration of the birth of our Lord.—(Adv.)

The Doylestown Blue Sox today signed contracts to play the St. Ann's A. A. on St. Ann's field on Sunday, November 12. The game will be played for the championship of Bucks County. St. Ann's will play York A. A. on Sunday.

Consultations Arranged, Economics Representative

With the exception of Saturday morning, Miss Rhandena A. Armstrong, county home economics representative, will be in her office in the Bucks County Administration Building, Doylestown, for consultations every morning.

Mrs. Amos Satterthwaite, of Lower Makefield township, entertained a group of women at her home yesterday afternoon. Miss Armstrong led the discussion of a house furnishing project, paying attention to the arrangement of living room furniture.

The discussion of muscle building foods, and the preparation of egg dishes, baked beans and fish soufflé will be presented at a meeting of the Washington Crossing food selection group, with Miss Armstrong as their leader this afternoon.

The second discussion of "Making the most of your living room by use of color" will take place Thursday when the Warrington Women's Club meets at the home of Mrs. Abram Nash at Eureka.

On Friday Miss Armstrong will serve as a judge at the Newtown food and farm show.

On Saturday morning Miss Armstrong will meet a group of Rockhill women for the purpose of reorganizing the Rockhill clothing club at the home of Mrs. D. C. Cole, on the Ridge road, at 9.30 o'clock.
